The Jacksonville Symphony Welcomes Daniel Wiley to the Symphony Family

Wiley will serve as the music director of the Jacksonville Symphony Youth Orchestras and assistant conductor of the Jacksonville Symphony

"I am thrilled to join the Jacksonville Symphony as music director of the Jacksonville Symphony Youth Orchestras and assistant conductor! What excites me most about the Jacksonville Symphony is that it is an organization that is so clearly dedicated to its mission: enriching the lives of people through symphony music. Whether it's offering a variety of concert experiences with a world-class orchestra or providing young musicians an opportunity to improve their skills in one of the Jacksonville Symphony Youth Orchestras, the Jacksonville Symphony is clearly integrated into the vibrant culture of Jacksonville, and I can't wait to join this great orchestra and community.” - Daniel Wiley

The position of music director of the Jacksonville Symphony Youth Orchestras is Endowed by the Winston Family

About Daniel Wiley

Wiley joins the Symphony from the Windsor Symphony Orchestra (WSO) where he conducted over 65 concerts a season and leads three community ensembles. Wiley has been instrumental in expanding the WSO’s educational footprint by creating a Digital Education Concert Series, which includes 10 hours of interactive music curriculum for schools. Lauded as “an exemplar of impassioned and outstanding pedagogy,” this program has served over 122,550 students across Canada and the United States.

As a former public school music teacher, Wiley has a unique passion for music education, frequently donating his time as a guest clinician for school music programs throughout the United States and Canada. Recently, he has been invited to conduct the Texas Music Educators Association’s Region 32 High School Orchestra Clinic in Austin, Texas.

Learn More About Daniel!

“We are absolutely delighted to welcome Daniel to the team! His extensive background in both music education and orchestral conducting makes him the perfect fit for the job. Music education in our community is a major priority for the Symphony, and Daniel is the right person to energize our education programs.” - Marianne Rice, Lory Doolittle Endowed Director of Education and Community Engagement